A BLOODY ATTACK.
 By Polish Anarchists on a Warsaw Bank.

Warsaw, May 25.—A brief, but very bloody encounter took place here this afternoon at the Industrial Savings Bank, which was attacked by a band of anarchists. The latter with revolvers in their hands, ordered the clerks and customers present to hold up their hands.

The chief clerk promptly drew a revolver and fired at the intruders. This was a signal for a brisk fusillade during which two customers were killed, two customers, five clerks, and one bank assistant wounded. The anarchists escaped carrying off their wounded.

 Whisky.

HANDSOME PICTURES.—Probably the finest picture yet seen here, of the town of Roosevelt, the storage basin and near-by scenes, were yesterday hung in the office of Dwight B.
 Heard. The pictures were made by the official photographer for the government at Roosevelt. One in particular, is a large view, taken in three sections, the area taken in by the camera including not only the dam site but a mile or so up the bed of both Salt river and Tonto creek. The town of Roosevelt, the cement works, the contractors' headquarters on the opposite side of the Salt and the entire central portion of the basin is shown. The picture was taken at a time when both streams were carrying an immense volume of water and the view is unusually realistic. Another picture is taken from a point a mile up Salt river, looking toward Roosevelt. This is directly opposite the viewpoint generally chosen by visiting photographers, and the picture gives the best view of the town of Roosevelt and the cement mill that has yet been shown here.

A SOJOURNER'S LAMENT.

Afar from the din of city.
 The heat and the dust of town,
 He took his way, one summer day,
 A winding road adown.

He came to a house, and older,
 And welcome found he there
 'Mid joyous friends, whose kindness tends To lighten every care.

He droused in the summer sunshine,
 He bathed in Poesy's stream,
 In sweet content his days were spent,
 And life seemed but a dream.

He met the sweetest of maidens Down by the grape-vine swing;
 O sweet surprise! Her wistful eyes Met his, and love took wing.

The smiles they exchanged seemed mutual—Ah, Cupid's cruel dart!
 But many have laughed while Cupid's shaft
 Played havoc with the heart.

Alas for the ways of destiny—
 Grim duty spoke his name,
 "Go thou thy way,"—ah, who shall say With either praise or blame?

Life without love is incomplete—
 No sorrow, no content,
 But man knows not his destined lot,
 And must, one day—lament.
 —Mablon Elliott.

STANDING PAT.

His mien was one Of calm content;
 He cared not how
 The fashions went;
 He simply smiled
 And said: "Some day
 The styles are bound
 To come my way."

The collars and
 The gay cravats,
 Likewise the vests
 And shoes and hats
 Are all revived
 By fashion's show
 In every twenty-
 Y years or so.

"And so my heart
 Is light and gay.
 I do not heed
 The things they say.
 I need not go
 To them; you see,
 I'll wait and let Them come to me!"
 —Washington Star.

A GOOD "GRAMMERER."

Several years ago, when the old district system of schools was in vogue in Vermont, my grandfather, the late Rev. Hosea E. Ballou, was superintendent in the town of Wilmington.

One day a young man from Dover, who had applied for one of the schools in that town, was sent to him to undergo an examination. After going through a portion of the examination, with more or less success, he was given some mathematical problems to deal with. After wrestling with these a while, and seeing the hopelessness of his efforts, he said:

"Mr. Ballou, I ain't much of a rithmeticker, but the folks to home calls me a pretty good grammerer."—Boston

A SELFISH VIEWPOINT.

Miss Eva Marshall Shonts, the president of the Young People's Christian Temperance union, said in Chicago, apropos of selfishness:

"The selfishness of some drinking men is so great that they say their bad habits harm none but themselves.
 They forget how these habits harm their families, and young people, and —and—it is impossible to measure the widespread effects that drinking has."

Miss Shonts smiled.
 "Such men as I have been describing remind me of a certain dentist," she said.

"A man went to the dentist to have a tooth pulled. He lay back in the red velvet operating chair, a plug was put between his jaws to hold his mouth open, gas was administered, there was a blank—and the man in due course came to with a tooth missing.
 "He ran his tongue over the place where the tooth had been, and a look of sorrow and anger spread over his face."

"Man," he said, "you've pulled the wrong tooth."
 "The dentist frowned at this.
 "So I have," he said. "Well, I won't charge you anything, so it's my loss—a loss of $2. And that's what I get for being careless."
